CARDI B TAKES THE SUBWAY (AND THE HOLIDAYS) BY STORM

This holiday season, New Yorkers got an early gift — and no, it's not faster trains, functional escalators, or a rent break. Instead, Santa delivered something way more chaotic and delightful: Cardi B is now the voice of the NYC subway. - Yes, Cardi B.

Belcalis Almanzar. The Patron Saint of "Okurrr." Leader of Commuter Sass & Public-Transit Realness.
Is this the only holiday miracle we can trust?

If anyone can unite tourists, commuters, property managers, and the guy eating a tuna sandwich at 8 AM, it's Cardi B telling you to stand clear, pay attention, and get your life together before the next stop.

So in the spirit of joy, jingles, and Q4 lease renewals, here are the official (and unofficial) Cardi B subway announcements for commercial real estate managers who are done with 2025 and just want the elevators to work and tenants to stop microwaving fish.

- "Ayo, passengers! Stand clear of the closing doors. Santa watching, and he don't play games, okurrr?"
- "Next stop: your office holiday party! And baby, if you ain't RSVP'd, this train ain't slowing down for you!"
- "Attention y'all: spill your peppermint mocha and that's on you. Not even the elves cleaning that up."
- "This train is delayed, baby. Blame the snow, blame the elves, blame Mercury retrograde. We still surviving!"
- "All aboard! This ain't the Rockefeller Center runway. Strut if you want, but watch the gap, k!"
- "Hey holiday shoppers! Keep your hands inside the sleigh and your complaints to Santa, not me!"
- "Next stop: North Pole Adjacent. If you ain't festive, hop off now and go cry in a cab."
- "This is your girl Cardi B — don't block the doors unless you Santa carrying gifts! You heard it. Now move!"
- "If you drop your phone on the tracks during the holidays? Baby, that's between you and the Grinch."

MTA CASINOS

3 NYC casinos win licenses after yearslong battle: gambling facilities to be built next to Citi Field, in the East Bronx and in Southeast Queens. The MTA is counting on receiving hundreds of millions of dollars in tax money from the projects starting next year.

NY Casino board raises red flags over winners' tax promises and debt financing

Deep Dive: Big Apple Jackpot | The New Yorker inside bringing casinos to NYC

Steve Cohen signs casino deal with city despite surprise court ruling - remember casino licenses and revenue will be used to fund the MTA.

How Steve Cohen Beat the Odds to Win a NYC Casino: Steve Cohen wanted something even bigger than the Mets. He beat Jay-Z, politicians, and the odds to get it. And note at least part of the massive CitiField Lot will become a new 25 acre park.

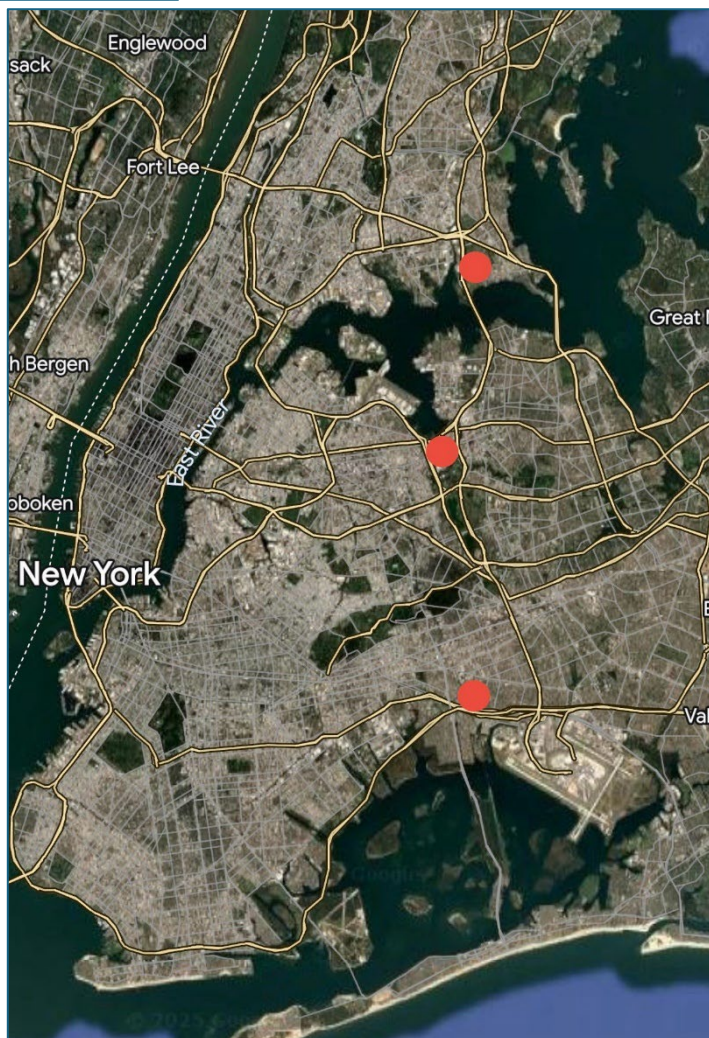

And let the complaints begin: "The city just spent a decade deciding where 3 casinos will go. The idea is to boost tourism and raise money as the city gets an initial $500mm and a perpetual revenue cut from each casino. Think big, Vegas style resorts.

This is an easy opportunity for the city to raise money from foreigners and tourists, instead of raising taxes on residents, fares on transit, adding to the debt, etc.

You'd THINK it'd be logical to put a casino close to where the tourists already are, but no. Not a single casino in Manhattan or the Brooklyn waterfront. They instead decided to put them in a line in some of the least accessible places. One has no subway, one is DEEP off the A train, and the other is on the already packed 7

Are they really expecting tourist gamblers to go to any of these? NYC has so many rich tourists concentrated in Manhattan, why on earth would you make them go to deep Queens to gamble? Most won't go.

They had developers proposing billions in construction and improvements on 8 different unused and underused Manhattan/Brooklyn sites and the politicians voted against all. It's so frustrating watching the city squander an opportunity like this, but not surprising at this point..."

It's Not The Years, It's The Miles.... Let's Ask Indiana Jones What To Do

RAIDERS OF THE LOST ARK

Flight 1: Peru → US. Attire: Classic Indy look. Travel safety: Moderately unsafe. He's forced to share the cockpit with Reggie the pet snake, and remember, he hates snakes.

Flight 2: US → Nepal. Attire: Well-dressed academic: city suit, trench coat, fedora. Travel safety: Smooth, but Nazi agents shadow him.

INDIANA JONES AND THE TEMPLE OF DOOM

Flight: Shanghai → India (Lao Che Air Freight). Attire: Start: Formal white tuxedo jacket. Escape attire: By the time he crashes (in an inflatable raft), he's back to rugged "lion tamer" gear. Travel safety: Absolute catastrophe.

INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE

Flight 1: US → Venice. Attire: Well-cut suit. Travel safety: Uneventful. But he ignores the "don't trust anybody" advice. Flight 2: Germany → ? (Escape via Zeppelin & biplane). Attire: Tweed suit + overcoat; posing as a ticket inspector on the blimp. (See the front page of this report) Mid-flight: Forced to evacuate via attached biplane. End attire: Same suit, minus dignity. Travel safety: Indy flies well. His dad accidentally shoots the plane's tail off. They crashland, but survive.

INDIANA JONES AND THE KINGDOM OF THE CRYSTAL SKULL

One Flight shown: US → Peru. Attire: Classic Indy look. Travel safety: Uneventful. (All the danger is saved for the jungle.)

INDIANA JONES AND THE DIAL OF DESTINY

Flight 1: New York → Tangier. Attire: Professorial shirt and jacket. Travel safety: Commercial flight; no issues. Flight 2: Sicily → Aeolian Sea → Ancient Syracuse. Attire: Field outfit. Travel safety: Historically unprecedented. Enemy aircraft, Temporal vortex, Battle of Syracuse, Emergency return to 1969.

When Indy dresses nicely:

- Tuxedo flight: Plane sabotage, pilots jump out, forced raft escape
- Suit/tweed flights: Shot down by his father, followed/attacked by Nazis.

When Indy wears rugged field gear:

- Flights are usually unremarkable, even if surrounded by chaos.
- Also allows for hat retention during improbable physics events.

Conclusion: Dressing well statistically results in worse air travel outcomes for Dr. Jones. Functional clothing improves survivability, not elegance.

If Indiana Jones is our data set, the Department of Transportation should require passengers to dress DOWN for safer flights. There are limits to this conclusion: shirtless attire on the airfield is a clear danger.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS!!!!!!
